ABSENT FOR 35 YEARS, IS UNABLE TO FIND HIS WAY

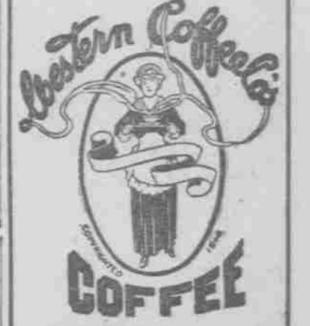

Dr. L. Miesse, of Pittsburg, Kan., arrived in El Paso this morning, returning here after an absence of 35 years.

In 1880 Dr. Miesse was connected with the Southern Pacific here and helped lay the line to Spofford Junction.

He says he had a hard time finding his way about the city but was able to locate the sites of old land marks in the downtown district, notably where a little drug store used to stand at the corner of San Antonio and El Paso streets and where, one Sunday morning, he saw the sheriff kill seven Mexicans and men who had attempted to rush the store.

He says that the river as a boundary line between this country and Mexico was not regarded with much concern by the old time El Paso sheriff, who went out to get his men and got him, whether he went north or south.

Dr. Miesse will remain here a few days and then will leave for the coast.
